It seems rather singular to read the ravings of Confederates at Lincoln every time they hear of the emancipation of slaves. Why should he make it a matter of complaint that his negro is taken from him by one he treats as a publie enemy; by one he defies, and against whom he appeals to the sword? He intends to take all advantages of every weak point in his adversary. He started out to seize property and raise armies, when the Government forbore to lift a finger against him. He commissioned privateers to rob on the ocean. He confiscates all the property within his reach remorselessly, and proclaims it. He destroys any species of property that stands in the way of his ebject. He seeks every weak point of his adversary at which to strike the most effective blow. He arms and employs the Indian, whose known rule of warfare is the indiscriminate slaughtelegraph tells the truth, form; companies of slaves, and drills them to serve his purpose. Now, if he has a weak place in his own camp, what right has he to raise a howl of distress if the enemy strikes it? If this Union were divided, and war should be started, as it would be, between its parts, what plea could a Confederate set up if the enemy published freedom to the slave wherever the army went? This is just what a public enemy, without being restrained by any constitutional obligations,

The Confederates assume that this condition of things exists at present; that the Southern Confederacy is an independent nation, and making war as such. If that be so, they can't complain of the enemy what-

We demand of the President, for the sake of the country, to hold strictly to the Constitution on this subject, and not allow the military authorities to do what it was never intended the Federal Government should do. The Federal Government has no right to interfere with slavery in a State-to establish, prohibit or protect it. For the sake of the country, this ought to be borne in mind. Those engaged in this rebellion, however, have no right to charge the emancipation of their slaves as an outrage on them. The Administration owes them no forbearance. To defy an enemy, and then be shocked at the harm he may do you, as if his forbear ance was a duty, when you are resorting to ance was a duty, when you are resorting to command of Colonels McHenry, Hawkins every expedient which Satanic ingenuity and Shackleford. Happily for the country, the Federal Gov the war on its part is to restore the vitality of law, and not destroy it. We expect the land-marks of the Constitution to be observed, notwithstanding the rebellion. We intend to save these rebel States, in spite of the ill conduct of their demagogues.

We apprehend, however, that the owners of slave property in the seceded States will suffer from this war. It is inevitable. No precautions will prevent it. We foresaw this at the start. Morehead told the truth when he said Secession was the severest Government, saw it. Their affected zeal for slavery was all for office. No property requires so much the protection of law and tive order as property in slaves. All slave holders know it. The spirit of revolution is dangerous to such an institution. Who can foresee what dance the demon of revo lution may lead its followers? Those who start revolutions seldom end them, and rarely do they end as expected and intend. ed. What may be overwhelmed and torn up by the storm, human forecast can't predict.

All experience has shown that the wise course is to reform the evils in a Govern ment without destroying it; that it is fo ly to subvert existing institutions until some

Unfortunately, the projectors of this revolution appealed to prejudice and passion, and were as incapable as they were indisposed to calculate what was put at hazard by their conduct. The people were anfismed by a description of wrongs they never felt, and apprehensions of evil of which there was no danger. They were deanded with the false predictions of easy success, and utopian dreams of a future never to be realized. Sad experience will open their eyes to realities. Even should they succeed in a separation and a hellow truce, the seeds of a century of war are sown, and posterity will reap a harvest of calamities.

Even at this late day, if the Confederates would consult reason, instead of passion, they would retrace their steps. Their success is not a possibility now. They have started down hill, and will slide on to

THE FIGHT AT PIKETON.—The official report of the fight at Piketon, a week ago, has not yet been received, and until it has been published, we cannot, with any cer tainty, give the result, beyond the fact, which may be considered fully established, that the rebels were completely routed and their power for evil in that part of the State destroyed.

OWENSBORO, KY., Nov. 13, 1861. Editors Democrat-Gentlemen: Stopping few days at this place, I have had the leasure of making the acquaintance of that venerable gentleman, "the oldest inhabitant," who tells me that the number of fugitives from slavery crossing the Ohio river within the last half century has no comparison to the number of fagitives from poverty and want; which, with disappontment and death, with all their melancholy surroundings, await them. Not so with fu-gitives from rebels. They seek those inalienable rights to life, liberty and property which rebels and traitors deny them. It is believed in the South, and even in portions of Kentucky, that loyal men have no rights which rebels and traiters are "bound to The question here arises, Shall we wait the slow process of legislation for a law to restore these fugitives to their rights, to their families, their homes? or, shall there be made a "military necessity" for their rendition? or shall the Union men surrender their rights to the invading foe? To this, methinks, I hear the voice of Crittenden He speaks as he spoke at Buena Vista-his reply is as there: "Loyalty (Taylor) never

He, if the Crittenden is the right man in the right place. He is now on his road to visit his native home, Logan; and as he goes, he is sustained and quickened by more than ten thousand prayers from devout and pious hearts, which cannot fail to be effectual. General Crittenden is already recognized as a worthy son of a noble sire. But when he shall have succeeded in driving rebels and traitors out of his native and fondly cherished Green river country, his name will at once be associated with the truly great of his native State.

In his triumphal march to conquest and victory, I see close by his side a man whom the Gods saw fit to name Jackson. It was deemed fortunate for our country, in the war of 1812, that we had a Jackson; it is equally fortunate now, that we have a Jackson. It is believed, by competent judges, that but few men are more eminentally possessed of the essential qualities of a military commander than Hon. James S. Jackson. His regiment of cavalry, too, are worthy of such a leader. When the word On to Nashville!! shall be given, it will be Next comes the gallant and chivalrous Burbridge, who, whether in the social circle, at the hustings, or on the tented battle field, is the admired of all observers. His suavity and elegance of manners, with his dignified bearing, point him out as one fit to command. His recent interview with detachment of Buckner's army, at Woodbury, gives an earnest that his will be a brilliant career. His regiment of infantry, too, will follow where he leads. His bills, toe, are up for Nashville, via Russellville (his home), and it is said that many are the fervent, but secret, prayers offered up in that vicinity for his speedy return; while rebels and traitors there dread such an event as they do the grave.

I have not yet visited the regiments under character as brave, gallant and generous men, that the high character of Kentucky's gallant sons will not suffer in their hands. In all three regiments there are men who have fled for safety to the tented field. They now pant for liberty to return, doubly armed, in quest of their rights. Their oraters now will be powder and cannon, while their arguments will be lead and steal "Thrice armed are they whose cause is just.

Beaufort District, South Carolina. INTERESTING PARTICULARS.

The Beaufort district, or county, of South Carolina, now in the occupation of our land and naval forces, literally swarms with negroes. According to the census of 1850, which is not materially varied in this case by the returns of 1860, the popula tion of this district was as follows:

Total white population .. This will give us an average in round habitant of the district, so that no better point than this district could be selected at this crisis for a trial of the temper of this vital cotton State institution of slavery. The agricultural returns of the census from this district embrace the following very interesting statistics, and the reader will bear it in mind that the whole district, or county, is flat and swampy, and made up almost entirely of sea islands, separated from each other by a very remarkable net-mora or initial, contained and bajous.

Reduced to an analysis, these are exceeding'y interesting statistics. First, we find this district of Beanfort divided into 842 farms; or, in other words, the whole district is divided among 842 land owners, allowing an average of nearly 3,000 acres of improved land, forty negroes, and only six horses, mules and asses to each farm, all told. This will give us an idea of the vast amount of labor performed by the negroes with the hoe, the spade and shovel; and then it must be remembered that, cut up as the district is with islands, boats discharge, to a great extent, the duties performed elsewhere by horses, asses and

In the matter of pork and bacon, an allowance of one hog to each inhabitant will perhaps do. The great productions of the country are rice, cotton (sea island), THE RETROGRADE MOVEMENT-THE SICK, and Indian corn. At the present prices of sea island cotton in England, the crop of Beaufort district may be put down at two millions five hundred thousand dollars; and at six cents a pound we may set down its rice crop at the same figure; and, at a dollar a bushel, its Indian corn crop at half a million, making an aggregate product from these three staples of five and a half millions dollars.

Now, with our land and naval forces in exchange with many necessary articles of which they are sorely in need. ABOLITIONISM RAMPANT .- We make an occasional extract from the National Anti-Slavery Standard, to show the animus of abolitionism. Parker Pillsbury writes as follows on the Fremont affair:

Let President Lincoln understand that the people here in the West wish to see the evidence precede the condemnation—and certainly the seatence and execution. And some may wish yet to know whether the prudence and economy about Washington have been such as to demand so summary roceedings in Missouri.

Will it be treasonable to petition Congress o impeach the President and his advisers on the first Monday in December next, be fore the going down of the sun? good many of us are traitors in heart, to the extent of desiring it. And I know of nothing, were Congress brave and honest, that would so tend to subserve the ends of justice and liberty. PARKER PILLSBURY.

I listened to my brother and his fellow fugitives tell their wrongs by the camp fires, and I soon became satisfied with the lot of a soldier; for I conscientiously believe their case is just, and conscience is a terrible foe to take up arms against. I hope I may never have to encounter some friends in the Southern army upon the

Here is a scene to which we were witness last evening: Professor Anderson was about to pass into the Assembly Rooms at the Red Cow. At the door, lolling in his usual elegant manner, stood Jerry Luther, of well-known coaching skill, together with five or six other gentlemen, whose fashionable forms are familiar to all who ride or drive on the Parametta Road.

"Good evening, Professor," said Jerry, bowing gracefully, as Jerry always does. "Good evening," replied the Professor.

At the urgent request of his companions, however, the ring was duly handed to the Wizard, who placed it in the palm of his open right hand, and pointed at it the forefinger of his left. Plainly as possible the ring collapsed, grew less, shriveled up, and presently a little pillar of blue smoke arose. When that had disappeared, not a trace of Jerry's ring remained on the Professor's open palm. There was a loud laugh at the blank stare of astonishment which gathered upon

FLEET MOVING SOUTH!

Tribune.-Information received by Government, the 11th, says that pillage had nearly ceased. The powder had been secured and the light-house and the channel buoys recovered. A large force of South Carolina troops was gathering at Port Royal ferry, estimated at from 3,000 to 10,000. It was the expressed intention of the owners of the substance of reports by passengers by houses on the island to burn them.

It is stated that an available force for the defense of the eastern shore, including Col. Smith's regiment stationed there, is about 1.890 amn. It would, doubtlessly, be impossible to send reinforcements across the water. Boston, Nov. 16 -Captain Hunter, of the steamer Delta, from Bermuda, at Halifax, British steamer Fingal and the rebel steamer Nashville were in port. The Fingal had transferred her cargo of arms to the Nashville, and the latter had put Messrs. CAMP GAULEY MOUNT, Nov. 15 -The rebel forces by way of Raleigh and Fayette, protected by New river, which falls through a precipice gorge 600 or 700 feet deep, attacked and attempted to destroy our troops from the encampment on the Lewisburg road at and about Gauley. Their cannonading was replied to with such interest as induced them to make no further investment in that way.

On the night of the 10th inst. preparations for attacking and possibly capturing the rebels were so far advanced that a select force from Gen. Cox's brigade crossed the Kanawha and New rivers, and by ten o'clock the next day had driven them back three miles from all the hights. A column under Gen. Schenck intended to attack them in the rear, but were prevented from crossing the river owing to high water. Another column under General Benham, placed to attack their flank and rear, moved up as far as possible, and began to feel their front, when a sharp skirmish took place, lasting from four o'clock P. M. till dark. Benham's column laid on their arms waiting for morning, the rebels began to retreat from their intrenched camps, and before our troops discovered the movement, were well on their way to Raleigh. Their cavalry horses were used in hauling their baggage

Gen. Benham, on learning of their retreat pursued them for twenty-five miles, amids drenching rain and over muddy roads, when, finding there was but little chance of overtaking them, he turned back from the pursuit. In a skirmish with the rear guard, Col. Croghan, of the rebel cavalry, and a few others, were killed. It is thought that Floyd has come to the any quantity. Such a remedy its invaluable in districts where these addicting disorders prevait. This "CURE" expels the miasmatic poison of FNVER and AGUE from the system, and prevents the development of the discase, if taken on the first approach of its premonitory symotoms. It is not only the best roundy ever yet discovered for this class of complaints, tut also the cheapest. The large quantity we supply for a dollar brags it within the reach of everybod; and in billous districts, where Fever and Ague prevails, everybody should have it and use it treely best for cure and protection. It is hoped this price will place it within the reach of all—the poor as well as the rich. A great superfority of this remedy over any other ever discovered it contains no quitting the sharper of an every stays. for the so edy and certain eure of Intermittents is that it contains no quinien or mineral; consequently, it produces no quinism or other injurious effects whatever upon the constitution. Those cured by it are left as healthy as if they had never had the disease. Fever and Acue is not alone the consequence of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation, among which are—Neuralgi a, Rhemmati m, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothgahe, Eurache, Catarrh, As hma, Painitation, Painisi a flection of the Spieen, Hysterics, Pain is the Bowels, Coic, Paralysis, and Berangement of the Stomach.

It is 21 invaluable protection to immigrates and persons traveling or temporarily reading in the maintons districts. If taken occasionally or daily while exposed to the infection, that will be excreted from the system, and cannot accumulate in sufficient oursuity to open into disease. Hence it is even more valuable for protestion that gupe, and few will ever softer from intermittents if they evall themselves of the protection this remedy afords.

Ouctonna, Minn... December 16, 1859

Mesers. J. N. Harris & Co... Gents: * * * * The Pain Killer has been a constant occupant of our house for over two years, and a portion of the time it has been the only meric ne under our root. The almost uninterrupied health of our seven children I can attribute to nothing else than having the means always at hand to throw of any sudden attack of disease, caused by undue exposure, etc. Hardly ever do I have my children complain of being sick, wi'hout having them ask in the same sentence for Pain Killer.

For saveral years before I became acquainted with the Pain Killer, I had suffered a great deal from an affection in my throat, thought by some physicians to be BRONCHTIR; by others to be what is called MINISTERN'S SORE THROAT; at one time it was so severe that I was obliged to give up preaching. Within a few months after I had become acquainted with the Pain Killer, I had another attack from that distressing complaint. I tried my new found medicine, and to my astambhment and del ght I found it produced a wonderfully soothing effect, in a short time I was wholly relieved. Since that time I have had a number of attacks of the same nature, and the Pain Killer has always afforded me the relief. For the last Ten Years I have hardly tota a sermon in consequence of Sore Throat! About one year since, my wife became subject to severe-uffering from Rheumatism; our resort as usual, was to the Pain Killer, which would always relieve her. When we could use as much of it as was necessary, we bathed the parts affected freely, and then rubbed them well. I have not time now to say more, as I could with a hearty good will, and always have done in praise of the Pain Killer, which would always relieve her. In the year 1850 I was attacked with tetter or some kindred disease, on both my legs, which extended until from my knees to my leet was one raw sore. I consulted and obtained medicines and prescriptions from nearly all the physicians in this vicinity, but obtained no relief. Your agent at this place, Mr. Hoffman, recommended me to try the 8 rup and Cerate, which I fortunately did, and am now a sound and well man by their use.

With great gratitude, I remain yours truly.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 .- Capt. Taylor, reports that when the San Jacinto stopped at Cienfuegos, the escape of Slidell and Mason was ascertained, proceeding thence to Havana. It was understood they had taken passage, on the 7th inst., on the British mail steamer Trentz, plying between Vers Cruz, by way of Havana and St. Thomas, and Scuthampton. While the San Jacinto was in the narrowest part of the Bahama Channel, about 24° to the westwerl, she met the packet, and, as usual in such cases, fired a shot across her bows and brought her to. Two boats were sent to her, under command of Lieut. Fairfax, who, boarding the packet, arrested Mason and Slidell, who were personally known to him They, at first, objected to being removed without the employment of force for that purpose. However, they were soon after removed without further trouble and conveyed to the San Jacinto. Their respective secretaries, Eustis and McFarlan, were also brought on board, and are now on their way to New York. The packet had no other than her own flag. The remainder of her passengers, including the ladies con-nected with the Slidell and Mason party,

The official dispatches are volumnious and include several accounts of the capture together with a protest of Slidell and Mason against being taken from a British steamer.

THE LITTLE HEROINE.

BY MRS. CAROLINE SOULE.

"Morning again!" and the weary, wasted invalid lifted his head from his pillow and looked pitifully over the dim room. "Oh that the night had been longer! To the wretched, sleep is dear. My poor, poor wife—my darling babies—must they freeze and starve? Oh, God! it is too much!" And starve? Oh, God! it is too much!" And with tears gushing from his eyes, the pale man buried his head in the scanty covering and groaned aloud,

It was no wonder that he was out of heart on that cold, dark December day. At best, he had a hard struggle to get food, and for the past six months the struggle had been lest desperate, for his wife had been unable to assist him in the least, being confined to her bed with a slow wasting disease. His

"My little sunbeam," the father fondly called her, while the mother would say, in her low sweet tones, "or angel."

One night the young housekeeper waited until it was pitch dark for her father to come home to his frugal supper, and then, with fearful foreboding at her heart, undressed the little boys and put them to bed, and tied on her cloak and hood to go for him. A crowd met her at the very threshold. With a wild cry, she rushed toward the inanimate form they carried upon a board. It was her father brought home to them with a broken leg.

A week had passed since this misfortune. By the sale of their few pieces of furniture, the wolf had been kept from the door. But now nothing remained save the coarse bed on which the distressed ones slept. coal for the little grate; no tea for the feverish lips; no crust for the famished children!

What should be done?

It was a question little Marie asked herself again as they lay there watching the few pale sunbeams that struggled through the window. And she asked it oftner after she had risen and dressed herself and her brothers, and smoothed the two beds Bread they must have that day. They were all faint even now, and the boys clamoring for their breakfast.

Suddenly a bright thought came to the little daughter. She remembered having seen in the coffee houses, young girls, no taller than she, waiting upon the customers Perhaps they would try her. "If they only would," she murmered softly. "I am handy, quick and patient, and I would try so hard to oblige." I am pretty, too, she might truly have added, had there been a spark of vanity in her heart; for she was a sweet child, with a brow like a sunny snowdrift, and eyes like the spring violets that nestle in the woodlands. "I will try, at least, and see what I can do;" and after watching a moment the weary sleep of her parents, she whispered to the little boys that she was going out to get some bread for them, and hurried away.

She did go to the baker's, but her pitiful story failed to touch his hard heart, and there were tears on her cold cheek as she turned away. Even if she secured a place, she could hope for no wages till Saturday, and there were four weary days between this and that. Bread would be too late if she waited till then. What should she dobeg? She asked herself the question with a quivering lip. Never before had their poverty driven them to that strait, and it was hard, even now, with the picture of that wretched home fresh in her vision, to plead bread for my sick parents."

It was a new idea to her, and as fast as back the cup. feet could carry, her she went, and entering an instant before each baker's door, and found one that seemed empty. A whole pile of steaming loaves lay upon the counter. She rushed in and seized one, and hiding it under her cloak, fled madly up the street. But the baker had seen her from the little sitting room door, and was after her, crying lustily, "Stop thief, stop thief!" crowd followed her and the poor child was soon run down. "A clear case," said the police officer, who took her in hand—"property found on her. She must go to the courtroom" In vain she pleaded with them, and told her story. "They must do their duty, she might have begged; she might have gone to the souphouse; there was no excuse for stealing, at any rate."

The camp will be known as "Camp Crittenden," in honor of Kentucky's most distinguished Statesman.

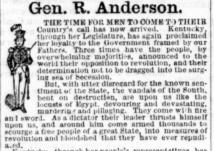

The cost of transportation to the place of rendezvous, as well as the cost of subsisting the troops previous to their being mustered into the service, will be paid by the Government. As soon as companies reach the camp they will be supplied with UNIFORMS and the BEST GUNS to be had in the country.

All who enlist will be entitled at the close of the war to $100 bounty and 160 acres of land; and those who may be wounded will receive a pension during life. All who enlist will be entitled at the closs of the war to $100 bounty and 160 acres of land; and those who may be wounded will receive a pension during life. I am happy to be able to announce that Juage W. W. HAYS, of Springfied, will be the Lieut. Colonel of the first regiment which may be organized at "Camp Critenden." As the camp is near the Railroad leading from lon.sville, and is convenient to a large number of counties whose people are entinently loval, it is desired and expected to make "Camp Crittenden." a permanent rendezvous, and accommodations will be provided for companies sufficient to form two or three regiments. And now I appeal to my fellow-Kentuckians to come forward and enroll themselves for service. Their invaded State appeals to them. Their foully-wronged and deeply-imperiled country appeals to them. The cause of human liberty and Republican institutions everywhere appeals to them. All that is most glerious in human government is now at stake, and every true man should come to the rescue.

The time, fellow-citizens, has come, when even the unpatrioric and the selfish should hasien to take up arms for the common defense of their State and country. Every codsideration of enlightened self-interest calls us to the field. If our enemies triumph, all our rrades, all our professions, all our avocations of whatever character, all our-possessions of every description, become valueless. To save ourselves and our families from ruin, not less than to save our State and conquery from degradation and shame, we must rain y now where the National day invites us. Come, then, let us gird up the whole strength of our bodies and souls for the conflict, and may the God of Batties guide home every blow we strike. For one, I am unwilling to see the people of my native State overrun and conquered by men claiming to be citizens of a foreign government. I cannot be indifferent to the issue which an unnatural enemy has forced upon Kentuckians.

THESE SEWING MACHINES COMBINE THE most recent improvements, are nearly noiseless when in operation, run with the greatest ease and rapidity, and are better adapted for general purposes and namily use than any other. They are not liable to get out of order, are exceedingly simple, and are made expressly for real practical utility; they do every variety of sawing, from the finest woven tissue to the heaviest woolen goods, both tailoring and fine leather work. Any person may learn to operate them in a very short time.

But the Sewing Machines manufactured by Greenman & True are not liable to these objections, as any person, on even a moment's examination, will readily discover. They will do more and better work than any other Machine ever offered to the public, making the most beautiful lock-skitch, alike on both sldes.
